In my future, I hope to become a child psychiatrist. I know that this is a job I would be good at, because i enjoy subjects in school such as chemistry and biology, and I enjoy learning about the brain. I also enjoy working with and interacting with kids. Psychiatry mixes two of my passions, and is therefore my dream job.I Know that to achieve this goal, there is a lot of work I need to do and steps I need to take. Here are some of them....

In order to become a psychiatrist, I will have to do a bachelors degree, and go to medical school for my Masters and Doctorate degrees.

The Bachelor program I hope to take is either the Bachelor of Nursing or Bachelor of Science. ( I have not decided which one yet)

After that, I hope to get into medical school, complete my residency in a hospital, specialise in childrens psychiatry and finally become certified.

Pros:	Cons
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- I will have the opportunity to study the brain and expand my knowledge on medical topics</li><li>- I will be able to work with children</li><li>- I will have a higher education</li><li>- I will have job security</li><li>- I will have the opportunity to help others</li></ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- I will have to be in school for 12 years</li><li>- The courses will be very difficult</li><li>- I will have a lot of student loans to pay off</li><li>- I might not have as much time to spend with family</li></ul>

Although there are pros and cons to pursuing a career in psychiatry, I think that the pros outweigh the cons, because I will be doing something I enjoy, and helping people in the process.
